

Dear Press Recognition Panel,

I am still uncertain as to how we have got to the present situation after Brian Leveson made clear there was a way forward in regulating the excesses of the press without too close involvement of the government. I suspect the government was still in love with press self regulation even though it was shown to be totally inadequate. I am writing to say I fully support the efforts of Hacked Off and hope their suggestions can be adopted and we will all be much happier.
