

I back Hacked Off submission to your panel.

I cannot be more strongly against any system that permits the press to regulate itself. It was the FAILURE of such a system that led to the Leveson inquiry and there seems no conceivable reason to think the press will behave any better in the future if they are again allowed to self-regulate.

I trust your panel will come to a sensible conclusion that protects ordinary citizens from unwarranted - and unchallengeable - press invasion.

Freedom of the Press must mean freedom for citizens from needless press intrusion. Or it means nothing.
