

Please bear in mind what was recommended by the Levenson Enquiry as follows.

1. Parliament should be reminded by the PRP what the Leveson Report said should happen if the industry tried to veto his recommendations and refused to comply. The Leveson Report says: "if some or all of the industry are not willing to participate in effective independent regulation, my own concluded view is to reject the notion that they should escape regulation altogether. I cannot, and will not, recommend another last chance saloon for the press. With some measure of regret, therefore, I am driven to conclude that the Government should be ready to consider the need for a statutory backstop regulator being established, to ensure, at the least, that the press are subject to regulation that would require the fullest compliance with the criminal and civil law, if not also to ensure consequences equivalent to those that would flow from an independent self-regulatory system."
2. In the meantime, regardless of whether IMPRESS is recognised by the PRP, the PRP should strongly recommend to Parliament that the key 'guaranteed access to justice incentive' (section 40 of the Crime and Courts Act) should be brought into effect as Parliament had intended.

Please also bear in mind that the line between broadcasters and the Press is becoming less and less as Internet based distribution of news becomes common to both platforms. The BBC and TV companies are subject to statutory regulation by OFCOM but the Press still evade having statutory regulation because ... well you decide, it might be Free Speech issues or it might be something to do with a cosy relationship between the government, Cameron/Gove/Wittingdale and the Press.

Your Faithfully

Andy Castellari