

in my opinion the government have failed in implementing Leveson's recommendations. A genuine regulator has not been accepted by the media. Redress for those trashed is still poor. The PM said that he would implement them "as long as they were not bonkers". Nobody thought that the judge's recommendations were bonkers but he still ignores them. Section 40 in particular should be implemented. This is an opportunity to ensure that the millions of taxpayers' money was not wasted. Also the harrowing experiences that some people went thru in re-living what they went thru would not have been in vain.

bob gaffey