

It is becoming obvious that the majority of the press have no intention of accepting regulation. It is because of their behaviour that regulation is needed. They have been found wanting in honesty and decency. It seems that they feel they are more powerful than government and have a disregard for the feeling of their past victims.

Faithfully

J E Clark