

Dear Sir / Madam,

Although I agree with a free press, to a degree it does need regulating. Should the industry refuse to comply with the Leveson Report, in respect of self regulation, they should be forced to be government regulated. This would be a pity, as generally any government intervention regarding regulation, is too extreme. I am also concerned that individuals in high office, would hide behind any regulation in the event of any irregularity.

Yours Faithfully,

Ray Harris-Hawkins
