Dear Sir or Madam,

I looked up who the Press Recognition Panel was currently recognising, and this was IMPRESS. So far, so good.

I then looked up IMPRESS to discover that they have around 42 regulated publishers and some in the compliance process.

I then looked to see the arbitrations and was a little disappointed to see we are all waiting on this, as it is the most visible process for the public to compare and contrast the IMPRESS arbitrations versus the IPSO ones.

I do of course realise that certain publications and a not-unwilling Government have done their best to stifle efforts to get Leveson Part 2 going which would have electrified this entire process.

So I do feel this is all rather a backwater at present because of the very strong headwinds, and I do support very much what all parties are doing here. I look forward very much to substantial progress occurring over the next 12 months.

With kind regards

Chris Clark
